Defendants.)

Pending before the Court in this administrative review action is Defendants’ motion to dismiss two of the five causes of action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6). Plaintiffs filed an opposition, and Defendants replied. This matter is submitted on the briefs without oral argument. For the reasons stated below, Defendants’ partial motion to dismiss is GRANTED.

1 I. BACKGROUND

2 Plaintiffs, various groups based in Arizona, California, New Mexico, and Florida, 3 an informal organization of scientists and two individuals filed this action to oppose 4 immigration and address environmental issues arising from immigration. (See First 5 Amended Complaint ("FAC") at 15-40.) They allege that Defendants Kirstjen Nielsen, 6 Secretary of Homeland Security, and the United States Department of Homeland Security
7 (collectively "DHS") violated the National Environmental Policy Act, 42 U.S.C. § 4331 8 et seq. ("NEPA"), and corresponding regulations. NEPA requires federal agencies to 9 identify environmental impacts of proposed actions, consider alternatives or mitigating 10 measures capable of lessening the impact on the environment, and prepare a report 11 detailing these considerations. See 42 U.S.C. § 4332. NEPA established the Council on 12 Environmental Quality ("CEQ"), which promulgates regulations guiding agency 13 compliance with NEPA's mandates. Id. CEQ regulations provide that an agency's 14 environmental report may take the form of an Environmental Assessment ("EA"), 15 Environmental Impact Statement ("EIS"), or a Finding of No Significant Impact. See 40
16 C.F.R. §§ 1508.9, 1508.11, 1508.13. Plaintiffs allege that immigration is a major cause 17 of population growth with a significant impact on the environment. They claim that the 18 DHS is required to subject all proceedings having to do with immigration to a NEPA 19 analysis, and its failure to do so harmed Plaintiffs by degrading the environment. (FAC at 20 42.)

21 NEPA itself does not provide for judicial review. Plaintiffs therefore brought suit 22 pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 101 et. seq. ("APA"), which 23 provides for judicial review of certain agency actions. Specifically, they bring suit under 24 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), which provides that a reviewing court must "hold unlawful and set aside agency actions, findings, and conclusions" which it finds to be "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law[.]"

1 DHS moves to dismiss Count I and Count II of the first amended complaint. Count
2 I alleges that the DHS Instruction Manual on the implementation of NEPA procedures 3 ("Manual") violates NEPA because it does not require that immigration programs comply 4 with it. (FAC at 71.) Count II alleges that the DHS violated NEPA by failing to engage 5 in NEPA review with respect to actions pursuant to seven immigration statutes pertaining 6 to employment based immigration, family based immigration, long term nonimmigrant
7 visas, parole, Temporary Protected Status, refugees, and asylum, and because the DHS 8 did not initiate NEPA compliance with regard to the immigration non-enforcement policy 9 known as Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals ("DACA"). (Id. at 73.)

10 II. DISCUSSION

11 DHS moves to dismiss Count I for lack of jurisdiction under Federal Rule of Civil 12 Procedure 12(b)(1), and Count II for failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6).
13 However, Rule 12(b)(6) applies to this motion as to both counts. Although Defendants 14 characterize the lack of finality of the Instruction Manual challenged in Count I as a 15 jurisdictional issue, "the fact that an agency decision is not final under the APA is not a 16 defect in subject matter jurisdiction." Idaho Watersheds Project v. Hahn, 307 F.3d 815, 17 830 (9th Cir. 2002), abrogated on other grounds by Winter v. Natural Res. Def. Council, 18 Inc., 555 U.S. 7, (2008), as recognized in Monsanto Co. v. Geertson Seed Farms, 561 19 U.S. 139 (2010). The motion is therefore considered under Rule 12(b)(6) as to both 20 counts.

21 A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) tests the legal sufficiency of the 22 complaint. See N. Star Int'l v. Ariz. Corp. Comm'n., 720 F.2d 578, 581 (9th Cir. 1983).
23 The Court may dismiss a complaint as a matter of law either for lack of a cognizable 24 legal theory or for insufficient facts under a cognizable theory. Robertson v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 749 F.2d 530, 534 (9th Cir. 1984). The Court must assume the truth of all factual allegations in the complaint and "construe them in the light most favorable to [the nonmoving party]." Gompper v. VISX, Inc., 298 F.3d 893, 895 (9th Cir. 2002). "While a

1 complaint attacked by a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss does not need detailed factual 2 allegations, a plaintiff's obligation to provide the grounds of his entitlement to relief 3 requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a 4 cause of action will not do." Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) 5 (internal citations and quotation marks omitted). Instead, the allegations "must be 6 enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level." Id.

7 Unless "agency action is committed to agency discretion by law, the APA allows 8 for judicial review: "A person suffering legal wrong because of agency action, or 9 adversely affected or aggrieved by agency action within the meaning of a relevant statute, 10 is entitled to judicial review thereof." 5 U.S.C. §§ 701(a)(2), 702. Not every agency 11 action is subject to judicial review. When, as here, the underlying statute does not 12 provide adequate remedy in court, a "final agency action" is reviewable. Id. § 704. The 13 scope of judicial review is limited to "compel[ling] agency action unlawfully withheld or 14 unreasonably delayed; and [¶] hold[ing] unlawful and set[ting] aside" certain kinds of 15 agency actions, findings, and conclusions. Id. § 706.

14 A. Count I

15 Plaintiffs argue that the Manual is subject to judicial review as final agency action 16 under 5 U.S.C. 704, which is "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise 17 not in accordance with law" under 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A). The parties disagree whether 18 the Manual represents final agency action. A two-part test determines whether an agency 19 action is final under the APA: "[f]irst, the action must mark the consummation of the 20 agency's decisionmaking process . . . [a]nd second, the action must be one by which 21 rights or obligations have been determined, or from which legal consequences will flow."
 22 Bennett v. Spear, 520 U.S. 154, 177-78 (1997) (internal quotation marks and citations 23 omitted). The focus is "on the practical and legal effects of the agency action." Or.
Natural Desert Ass'n v. U.S. Forest Service, 465 F.3d 977, 982 (9th Cir. 2006). "It is the 24 // // // //

1 effect of the action and not its label that must be considered." Id. at 985 (internal 2 quotation marks and citation omitted).

3 An agency action qualifies as the "consummation of the agency's decisionmaking 4 process" when it represents the agency's "last word in the matter" in the sense that "an 5 action is final and is ripe for judicial review," as opposed to "merely tentative or 6 interlocutory in nature." Id. at 984 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). For 7 example, the Forest Service annual operating instructions issued to the holders of cattle-8 grazing permits satisfied prong one of Bennett because they set "the parameters for the 9 upcoming grazing season and . . . impose[d] legal consequences on the [grazing] permit 10 holder." Id. at 983; see also id. at 986. The grazing permits by themselves were not 11 enough. See id. at 985. As provided in the permits, the holders were subject to terms and 12 conditions, including the Forest Plan and federal environmental requirements. Id. The 13 annual operating instructions instructed the permit holders how those standards affected 14 their individual grazing operations that season, including the start date of grazing in the 15 area and how much grazing particular pastures in a given allotment can sustain that 16 season. Id. at 984, 985. Although the Forest Service had issued permits, the annual 17 operating instructions consummated its decisionmaking process regarding the extent, 18 limitation and other restrictions on the permit holders' rights under the permit. Id. at 986.

19 By contrast, the Manual does not represent the DHS' final decision regarding 20 NEPA review. It establishes the procedures for ensuring DHS' compliance with NEPA.
21 See 79 Fed. Reg. 70,538, 70,538 (Nov. 26, 2014). The Manual informs agency 22 employees of what to consider in evaluating a program under NEPA, provides guidance 23 on which DHS actions NEPA applies to, and sets forth procedures for NEPA's 24 implementation. (FAC Ex. 2 at 20, 40, 37.) It does not make any decision. It is a "decision-making tool" to be used "prior to making decisions." (Id. at 19.) The Manual therefore does not meet the first prong of Bennett. For this reason alone, the Manual is not "final agency action," and Count I is dismissed on this ground.

1 Alternatively, Count I is dismissed because it also does not meet the second prong 2 of Bennett. An agency action meets the second prong "if the action is one by which 3 rights or obligations have been determined, or from which legal consequences will flow."
4 Or. Natural Desert Assoc., 465 F.3d at 986 (quoting Bennett, 520 U.S. at 178). There are 5 "several avenues" for meeting this element, including when administrative actions 6 "impose an obligation, deny a right, or fix some legal relationship as a consummation of 7 administrative process," or have "a direct and immediate effect on the day-to-day 8 business of the subject party" or have "the status of law or comparable legal force, and 9 whether immediate compliance with its terms is expected." Id. at 986-87 (internal 10 quotation marks, ellipses and citations omitted.) In Bennett an agency opinion regarding 11 the impact of a proposed reservoir project on endangered fish met this element because, 12 although it did not conclusively determine how the project would be carried out, it altered 13 the legal regime by authorizing the agency to take endangered species only if it complied 14 with conditions set forth in the opinion. Bennett, 520 U.S. at 178. In Oregon Natural 15 Desert Association the annual operating instructions met this element because they were 16 binding on the permit-holders: if the permit-holders did not comply with the terms of the 17 annual operating instructions, the agency could restrict their permits. 465 F.3d at 987.

18 Here, the Manual does not impose any obligations or consequences on the DHS 19 that are not already imposed by NEPA itself, but only provides a procedural framework 20 for compliance without imposing consequences for violating the Manual's guidelines.
21 (See generally FAC Ex. 2.) Any legal consequences are set forth in NEPA, provided that 22 failure to follow the Manual's provisions also violated NEPA. Accordingly, the Manual 23 does not meet the second requirement of Bennett's "final agency action" definition.

24 Alternatively, Plaintiffs contend that the Manual qualifies as a rule under 5 U.S.C.
§ 551(4). Section 551(13), which defines "agency action" includes "agency rule" as an example of agency action; however, it does not define "final agency action." The definition of "final agency action" is set forth in Bennett. For the reasons stated above,

1 the Manual does not meet the definition of final agency action. The APA therefore does 2 not provide for judicial review. Defendants' motion to dismiss Count I is granted.

3 B. Count II

4 In Count II, Plaintiffs seek judicial review of seven immigration statutes pertaining 5 to employment based immigration, family based immigration, long term nonimmigrant 6 visas, parole, Temporary Protected Status, refugees, and asylum, and DACA, an 7 immigration non-enforcement policy of the DHS. Plaintiffs seeks review under 5 U.S.C.
8 § 706(2)(A), which allows review of final agency action which is "found to be [¶] 9 arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law," 10 and 5 U.S.C § 706(1), which may apply to "compel agency action unlawfully withheld or 11 unreasonably delayed." Plaintiffs proceed on the theory that the seven statutes and the 12 non-enforcement policy are subject to judicial review because they are "programs" 13 requiring "programmatic environmental analysis," such as PEIS under 40 C.F.R. § 14 1508.18(b)(3). (See FAC at 73.)

15 As with Court I, only a "final agency action" is subject to judicial review and 16 remedy. Lujan v. Nat'l Wildlife Federation, 497 U.S. 871, 882 (1990); Norton v. S. Utah
17 Wilderness Alliance, 542 U.S. 55, 62 (2004); 5 U.S.C. §§ 702, 704, 706. To state a 18 claim, Plaintiffs must show that they are challenging an "agency action." See Lujan, 497 19 U.S. at 882, 890-91. In addition to being "final," the action must be "circumscribed," 20 "discrete," or "particular." Norton, 542 U.S. at 62; Lujan, 497 U.S. at 891. This 21 limitation "precludes . . . broad programmatic attack[s]." Norton, 542 U.S. at 64.
22 Plaintiffs "cannot seek wholesale improvement of [a government] program by court 23 decree, rather than in the offices of the Department or the halls of Congress, where 24 programmatic improvements are normally made." Lujan, 497 U.S. at 891(emphasis in original). These limitations are the same, whether APA review is sought under 5 U.S.C.
§ 706(2)(A) or § 706(1). Norton, 542 U.S. at 64-65.

1 What Plaintiffs propose here is broad programmatic review of DHS actions under 2 seven immigration statutes and a non-enforcement policy relative to its NEPA 3 obligations. This is precisely the type of APA review that was rejected in Lujan as not 4 constituting the requisite "final agency action." See 497 F.3d at 890-94. Plaintiffs target 5 whole categories of DHS actions, each of which includes many regulations and policy 6 memoranda. (FAC Ex. 3 at 109-26; Opp'n at 19-21.) Although Plaintiffs identified 7 regulations within these categories, as in Lujan, they are still challenging the continuing 8 and evolving operations of the DHS. Further, the claim that DHS failed to engage in 9 NEPA review arises from an alleged "general deficiency in compliance," similar to the 10 challenges found lacking in Lujan and Norton.

11 Plaintiffs do not seek review of an "agency action" because they seek review of 12 entire operations which are "continuing (and thus constantly changing)." Lujan, 497 U.S.
13 at 890 & n.2. Much less are these DHS operations final in terms of being ripe for judicial 14 review. "[T]he flaws in the entire 'program'-consisting principally of the many individual 15 actions . . . and presumably actions yet to be taken as well-cannot be laid before the 16 courts for wholesale correction under the APA[.]" Id. at 892-93. Judicial review under 17 the APA is limited to "final agency action," which typically requires "case-by-case 18 approach." Id. at 894. The "sweeping actions" Plaintiffs desire "are for the other 19 branches." Id. Accordingly, DHS operations under seven immigration statutes and 20 DACA are not reviewable under the APA.

21 Alternatively, Plaintiffs maintain that the seven immigration statutes and DACA 22 are "programs" under 40 C.F.R. § 1508.18(b)(3), which requires the DHS to prepare a 23 PEIS. However, the decision whether a set of agency actions is a "program" for which 24 NEPA analysis is required is left to the agency's discretion. Kleppe v. Sierra Club, 427 U.S. 390, 412 (1976). A court cannot order an agency under the APA to perform a discretionary act. Norton, 542 U.S. at 63-64. A court can only compel a legally required,

1 non-discretionary act. Id. Judicial review of DHS' determination not to conduct a PEIS 2 is therefore not appropriate. Defendant's motion is therefore granted at to Court II.

3 C. Leave to Amend

4 Finally, the Court considers whether Plaintiffs should be granted leave to amend 5 Counts I and II. See Ebner v. Fresh, Inc., 838 F.3d 958, 963 (9th Cir. 2016). Rule 15 6 advises leave to amend shall be freely given when justice so requires. Fed. R. Civ. P.
7 15(a)(2). "This policy is to be applied with extreme liberality." Eminence Capital, LLC v.
8 Aspeon, Inc., 316 F.3d 1048, 1051 (9th Cir. 2003) (internal quotation marks and citation 9 omitted).

10 In the absence of any apparent or declared reason – such as undue delay, bad 11 faith or dilatory motive on the part of the movant, repeated failure to cure 12 deficiencies by amendments previously allowed, undue prejudice to the 13 opposing party by virtue of allowance of the amendment, futility of the 14 amendment, etc. – the leave sought should, as the rules require, be freely 15 given.

16 Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962). Dismissal without leave to amend is not 17 appropriate unless it is clear the complaint cannot be saved by amendment. See id.
18 Because amendment of Claims I and II would be futile, leave to amend is denied.

19 III. CONCLUSION

20 Defendant's motion for partial dismissal is granted. Counts I and II are dismissed 21 without leave to amend.

22 IT IS SO ORDERED.
