INTRODUCTION

2 In these consolidated cases, the State of California, by and through Xavier Becerra, 3 Attorney General, and the California Air Resources Board, and State of New Mexico, by and 4 through Hector Balderas, Attorney General (“Plaintiff States”) challenge the December 8, 2017
5 decision by Defendants U.S. Bureau of Land Management, et al. (“BLM”) to suspend key
6 requirements of the Waste Prevention, Production Subject to Royalties, and Resource 7 Conservation rule (“Waste Prevention Rule” or “Rule”). 82 Fed. Reg. 58,050 (Dec. 8, 2017) (the 8 “Suspension”). Plaintiff States contend that the Suspension is devoid of legal justification and 9 violates the fundamental requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”), the 10 National Environmental Policy Act (“NEPA”), and several federal land management statutes.
11 See Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief (“Complaint”), Dkt. No. 1. On December 12 28, 2017, this case was related to a similar action filed by several conservation organizations. See 13 Dkt. No. 22.

14 BLM now seeks to transfer these cases to the District of Wyoming, where two separate 15 lawsuits challenging the validity of the Waste Prevention Rule itself were filed in 2016 and were 16 recently stayed at BLM’s request. See Defendants’ Motion to Transfer these Actions to the U.S.
17 District Court for the District of Wyoming (“BLM Motion”), Dkt. No. 50.¹ However, the factors
18 to be considered by this Court in deciding a motion to transfer pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) 19 weigh strongly in favor of keeping venue in this District. The State of California’s choice of 20

21 ¹ Proposed-Intervenors North Dakota and Texas have filed a similar motion. See Proposed-
22 Intervenor North Dakota and Texas’s Motion to Transfer these Actions to the U.S. District Court
23 for the District of Wyoming; Memorandum of Points and Authorities (“ND Motion”), Dkt. No.
24 52. As an initial matter, Proposed-Intervenors are not yet parties to this action and have cited no
25 authority that would allow them to file such a motion, nor have they sought leave from the Court
26 in order to do so. While Proposed-Intervenors claim that their motion constitutes a “responsive 27 pleading” pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 24(c) (ND Motion at 1), a motion to 28 transfer is not the type of pleading contemplated by the Federal Rules. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 24(c) (motion to intervene must “be accompanied by a pleading that sets out the claim or defense for which intervention is sought”); Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(a) (defining “pleading” as various types of complaints or answers); see also Landry’s, Inc. v. Sandoval, 2016 WL 1239254, *2 (D. Nev. Mar.
28, 2016) (“A pleading accompanying a motion to intervene under Rule 24(c) should be one of those described in Rule 7(a)”). Therefore, the Court would be well within its authority to decline to consider or to strike Proposed-Intervenors’ motion. Rather than investing additional resources in moving to strike this largely duplicative motion, and in the interest of finality, Plaintiff States are responding to Proposed-Intervenors’ motion in this opposition.

1 venue in its home forum is entitled to substantial deference; in fact, such deference may be at its 2 highest when the plaintiff is a sovereign state. Moreover, the remaining factors either weigh 3 against transfer or are neutral. BLM’s primary contention—that the interest of justice favors
4 transfer because the District of Wyoming is already familiar with the Waste Prevention Rule—is 5 unavailing, given that Plaintiff States’ claims in this case are based on a separate agency action
6 and are grounded in APA and NEPA issues that have never been before the Wyoming court.
7 Therefore, this Court should deny the Motions to Transfer.

8 PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

9 BLM promulgated the Waste Prevention Rule on November 18, 2016. 81 Fed. Reg. 83,008
10 (Nov. 18, 2016). Immediately after the Waste Prevention Rule was issued, two industry groups
11 and the States of Wyoming and Montana (later joined by North Dakota and Texas) (collectively, 12 “Petitioners”) filed Petitions for Review of the Rule in federal district court in Wyoming.
13 Western Energy Alliance v. Jewell, No. 2:16-cv-00280-SWS (D. Wyo. petition filed Nov. 16,
14 2016); State of Wyoming v. Jewell, No. 2:16-cv-00285-SWS (D. Wyo. petition filed Nov. 18, 15 2016) (collectively, the “Wyoming Litigation”). In the Wyoming Litigation, the Petitioners have 16 alleged that the Rule (1) exceeds BLM’s statutory authority by comprehensively regulating air
17 quality, which they assert may only be accomplished through the federal Clean Air Act; (2)
18 exceeds BLM’s authority to regulate “waste” under the Mineral Leasing Act; (3) exceeds BLM’s
19 authority by regulating state and private oil and gas interests in communitized units; and (4) and 20 is arbitrary and capricious for several reasons.² Wyoming Litigation, Dkt. Nos. 141-143.

21 On January 16, 2017, following briefing and oral argument on the Petitioners’ motions for a
22 preliminary injunction, the Wyoming district court denied the motions, finding that the Petitioners 23 had failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits or irreparable harm in the absence of 24 an injunction. Wyoming Litigation, Dkt. No. 92, Order on Motions for Preliminary Injunction, 25 2017 WL 161428 (D. Wyo. Jan. 16, 2017). On January 17, 2017, the Waste Prevention Rule 26 went into effect. See 81 Fed. Reg. at 83,008.

27
28 ² As defendant-intervenors in that action, Plaintiff States contest all of these allegations.

1 The administrative record in the Wyoming Litigation was lodged on May 17, 2017,
2 Wyoming Litigation, Dkt. No. 127, and the merits have been fully briefed by the parties.
3 However, at the request of BLM and several of the Petitioners, the court stayed the litigation on 4 December 29, 2017. Wyoming Litigation, Dkt. No. 189. The court found that it “would be a 5 waste of resources” to “move forward to address the merits of the present Petitions for Review in 6 this cases, in light of the now finalized Suspension Rule and BLM’s continued efforts to revise 7 the Waste Prevention Rule.” Id. at 4.

8 While the Wyoming Litigation was pending, on June 15, 2017, BLM published a notice in 9 the Federal Register postponing the effectiveness of certain provisions of the Rule. 82 Fed. Reg.
10 27,430 (June 15, 2017) (the “Postponement Notice”). Citing “the existence and potential 11 consequences of the pending litigation,” BLM stated in the Postponement Notice that it “has 12 concluded that justice requires it to postpone the compliance dates for certain sections of the Rule 13 pursuant to [Section 705 of] the Administrative Procedure Act, pending judicial review.” Id.

14 The States of California and New Mexico challenged this unlawful action on July 5, 2017
15 in this court. See State of California v. U.S. Bureau of Land Mgmt., --- F. Supp. 3d ---, 2017 WL
16 4416409 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2017), appeal docketed, No. 17-17456 (9th Cir. Dec. 4, 2017)
17 (“California v. BLM”). On October 4, 2017, the court ruled that Section 705 did not apply to an 18 already-effective rule, and that the postponement amounted to a rulemaking that required
19 compliance with the APA’s notice and comment procedures. See California v. BLM, 2017 WL
20 4416409 at *7-10. The court also found that BLM’s failure to consider the benefits associated 21 with the postponed provisions rendered the action arbitrary and capricious and in violation of the 22 APA. Id. at *11-12. Thus, the court vacated the Postponement Notice and the Rule went back 23 into effect. Id. at *14. Notably, the court also rejected a similar motion to transfer that case to the 24 District of Wyoming, finding that “Plaintiffs’ decision to file suit in this court weighs heavily 25 against transfer” and that none of the remaining factors favored transfer. Dkt. No. 50-1, Exh. E.

26 The day after this court’s ruling on the Postponement Notice, BLM undertook a new 27 rulemaking process to suspend multiple key requirements of the Rule that were already in effect, 28

1 or set to take effect in January 2018, until January 17, 2019. 82 Fed. Reg. 46,458 (Oct. 5, 2017).
2 The Suspension was finalized by BLM on December 8, 2017. 82 Fed. Reg. 58,050. Plaintiff
3 States here allege that the Suspension (1) was arbitrary and capricious because BLM failed to 4 provide a reasoned explanation for suspending the rule, failed to consider how the Suspension 5 will fulfill its statutory mandates, offered an explanation for its decision that runs counter to the 6 evidence before the agency, and failed to consider alternatives to a suspension; (2) violated
7 BLM's statutory trust responsibilities or mandates to prevent waste of oil and gas, to protect the 8 interests of the United States and safeguard the public welfare, and otherwise ensure the 9 environmentally responsible development of oil and gas on public lands; (3) violated the 10 requirements of NEPA; and (4) violated the APA by failing to provide the public a meaningful 11 opportunity to participate in the rule making through submission of written data, views, or 12 arguments on the relevant matter presented. Dkt. No. 1. Plaintiff States filed a motion for 13 preliminary injunction, which is set for hearing on February 7, 2018. Dkt. No. 3.

14 STANDARD OF REVIEW

15 Pursuant to Section 1404(a), “[f]or the convenience of parties and witnesses, in the interest
16 of justice, a district court may transfer any civil action to any other district or division where it 17 might have been brought or to any district or division to which all parties have consented.”
18 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). Determining whether an action should be transferred under this statute is a 19 two-step process. Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Lubchenco, 2009 WL 4545169, *2 (N.D. Cal.
20 Nov. 30, 2009). First, the reviewing court must determine whether the action “might have been 21 brought” in the transferee court, i.e., whether the proposed transferee court is a proper venue for 22 the action. Id.

23 Second, “the plain language of the statute requires the Court to consider at least three 24 factors in deciding whether to transfer a claim to another court: (1) convenience of parties; (2)
25 convenience of witnesses; and (3) in the interest of justice.” Natural Wellness Ctrs. of Am., Inc.
26 v. J.R. Andorin Inc., 2012 WL 216578, *9 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 24, 2012). In addition, “Ninth Circuit 27 precedent requires that courts also weigh the plaintiff’s choice of forum.” Id. (citing Sec. Investor
28

1 Prot. Corp. v. Vigman, 764 F.2d 1309, 1317 (9th Cir. 1985)). In conducting this analysis, courts
2 in this district generally consider the following eight factors:

3 (1) the plaintiff’s choice of forum; (2) the convenience of the parties; (3) the 4 convenience of the witnesses; (4) ease of access to evidence; (5) familiarity of each 5 forum with applicable law; (6) feasibility of consolidation of other claims; (7) any 6 local interest in the controversy; and (8) the relative court congestion and time [to]
7 trial in each forum.

8 Doe v. Uber Techs., Inc., 2017 WL 2352032, *3 (N.D. Cal. May 31, 2017); see Natural Wellness
9 Ctrs., 2012 WL 216578, at *9; Jones v. GNC Franchising, 211 F.3d 495, 498-99 (9th Cir. 2000)).

10 “The party moving to transfer venue under Section 1404(a) bears the burden of establishing 11 the factors in favor of transfer.” Earth Island Inst. v. Quinn, 56 F. Supp. 3d 1110, 1115 (N.D.
12 Cal. 2014) (citing Commodity Futures Trading Comm’n v. Savage, 611 F.2d 270, 279 (9th Cir.
13 1979)). Moreover, a “defendant must make a strong showing of inconvenience to warrant
14 upsetting the plaintiff’s choice of forum.” Decker Coal Co. v. Commonwealth Edison Co., 805
15 F.2d 834, 843 (9th Cir. 1986).

16 ARGUMENT

17 I. WYOMING IS A PROPER VENUE ONLY BECAUSE BLM RESIDES THERE—JUST AS IT 18 RESIDES IN CALIFORNIA AND MANY OTHER STATES.

19 Plaintiff States do not dispute that this action “might have been brought” in the District of 20 Wyoming, but disagree with the rationale provided by Defendants. See BLM Motion at 6-7; ND
21 Motion at 4-5. Pursuant to the federal venue statute, a civil action against an agency or officer of 22 the United States may be brought in any judicial district “in which (A) a defendant in the action
23 resides, (B) a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred, or a 24 substantial part of property that is the subject of the action is situated, or (C) the plaintiff resides if 25 no real property is involved in the action.” 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1).

26 Here, BLM “can properly be considered a resident of both Wyoming and California”
27 because it maintains an office and manages land in both states (see BLM Motion at 6), allowing 28 for venue in either district. However, that is the only basis for venue in Wyoming under 28
U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1). Plaintiff States disagree that “the property that is affected by the Suspension Rule” is an appropriate factor to consider here. BLM Motion at 6. First, the Waste Prevention

1 Rule impacts oil and gas leases on public lands across the nation, including millions of acres in 2 California.³ Further, the location of potentially impacted property is not a relevant consideration
 3 in this case. As this court recently found, this provision of the venue statute is “intended mainly 4 to cover disputes over legal interests in real property.” Earth Island Inst., 56 F. Supp. 3d at 1115-
 5 16; see also Natural Res. Def. Council, Inc. v. Tenn. Valley Auth., 340 F. Supp. 400, 406
 6 (S.D.N.Y. 1971) (finding that the issue “cannot sensibly be whether real property is marginally
 7 affected by the case at issue. Rather, the action must center directly on the real property, as with 8 actions concerning the right, title or interest in real property”), rev’d on other grounds, 459 F.2d
 9 255 (2d Cir. 1972). This is not a case that involves a challenge to a right, title, or interest in “real 10 property,” but rather challenges BLM’s adherence to statutory and procedural requirements
 11 surrounding agency rule making under the APA and NEPA. Consequently, Plaintiff States’
 12 choice of venue was proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e)(1)(C) because the State of California
 13 resides in this District.

14 In sum, while the District of Wyoming may be a proper venue based on the fact that BLM 15 has an office and manages land in that state, this District is a more appropriate venue for the 16 action under Section 1391(e)(1).

17 II. PLAINTIFF STATES’ CHOICE OF FORUM, THE CONVENIENCE FACTORS, AND THE 18 INTEREST OF JUSTICE FAVOR VENUE IN THIS DISTRICT.

19 A. Plaintiff States’ Choice of Forum is Entitled to Substantial Deference.

20 BLM’s Motion fails to address the substantial deference afforded to the State of 21 California’s choice of forum in this District. “Ordinarily, a plaintiff’s choice of forum receives 22 substantial deference, especially when the forum is within the plaintiff’s home district or state.”
 23 Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. McCarthy, 2015 WL 1535594, *3 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 6, 2015) (citing 24 Lou v. Belzberg, 834 F.2d 730, 739 (9th Cir. 1987) (“great weight is generally accorded [the]

25 ³ California has more acres of federal mineral estate administered by BLM than Wyoming. Cf.
 26 BLM Motion at 6 (“Wyoming contains 40.7 million acres of federal mineral estate”) with U.S.
 27 Bureau of Land Management, “California Public Lands” (“In California, the BLM oversees 15
 28 million acres of public land (about 15% of the Golden State’s total land mass)” and “47 million acres of subsurface mineral estate”), available at:

1 plaintiff's choice of forum"); see Piper Aircraft Co. v. Reyno, 454 U.S. 235, 255-56 (1981)
2 (recognizing the "strong presumption in favor of the plaintiff's choice of forum," and that
3 "plaintiff's choice of forum is entitled to greater deference when the plaintiff has chosen the home
4 forum"); Gulf Oil Corp. v. Gilbert, 330 U.S. 501, 508 (1947) ("unless the balance is strongly in 5 favor of the defendant, the plaintiff's choice of forum should rarely be disturbed"). As Magistrate
6 Judge Laporte recently found in Plaintiff States' challenge to the Postponement Notice, "[t]his 7 may be especially true when the plaintiff is a sovereign state." Dkt. No. 50-1, Exh. E at 4 (citing 8 New Jersey v. U.S. Army Corps of Eng'rs, 2010 WL 1704727, at *3-4 (D.N.J. Apr. 26, 2010)).

9 While there are situations where a plaintiff's choice of forum is entitled to less deference,
10 this case is not one of them. See, e.g., Fabus Corp. v. Asiana Express Corp., 2001 WL 253185, 11 *1 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 5, 2001) ("[t]he degree to which courts defer to the plaintiff's chosen venue is 12 substantially reduced where the plaintiff does not reside in the venue or where the forum lacks a 13 significant connection to the activities alleged in the complaint."). Here, the State of California
14 has chosen to file this action in a home venue, where significant oil and gas activities are affected
15 by the Suspension. See Complaint, Dkt. No. 1, ¶¶ 12, 15, 16; Declaration of James Tichenor, 16 Dkt. No. 50-1, Exh. C, ¶ 4(b); U.S. Bureau of Land Management, "BLM Releases Draft Plan for 17 Oil and Gas Leasing in Central California" (Jan. 5, 2017), available at:
18 <https://www.blm.gov/press-release/blm-releases-draft-plan-oil-and-gas-leasing-central-california>.
19 Defendants have failed to cite any case where a lawsuit filed by a state plaintiff in its home court
20 was transferred pursuant to Section 1404(a).

21 Proposed-Intervenors claim that Plaintiff States' choice of forum should "be given little 22 weight" because this venue represents "classic forum shopping." ND Motion at 10-11. However,
23 Plaintiff States' decision to file in their home district to protect sovereign interests which are 24 clearly impacted by the Suspension represents a logical and convenient place to file, and is the 25 exact opposite of "classic forum shopping." See Friends of Scotland, Inc. v. Carroll, 2013 WL
26 1192956, *2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 22, 2013) ("there is no indication that plaintiff went 'forum 27 shopping' by filing the instant action in its home forum"); Peregrine Semiconductor Corp. v. RF

3 USA Inc., 2009 WL 723843, *3 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 18, 2009) (“A plaintiff’s decision to sue in the 4 forum where its company is based does not amount to impermissible forum shopping”), Stomp
5 Inc. v. NeatO, 61 F. Supp. 2d 1074, 1082 (C.D. Cal. 1999) (finding that Plaintiffs’ “decision to 6 sue in its home forum of California doesn’t amount to impermissible forum shopping”).

7 “Unless the balance of the Section 1404(a) factors weighs heavily in favor of the 8 defendants, ‘the plaintiff’s choice of forum should rarely be disturbed.’” Lubchenko, 2009 WL
9 4545169, at *4 (quoting Sec. Investor Prot. Corp., 764 F.2d at 1317); see Decker Coal, 805 F.2d 10 at 843 (“The defendant must make a strong showing of inconvenience to warrant upsetting the 11 plaintiff’s choice of forum.”). Defendants have failed to make such a showing. In fact, as 12 discussed below, the remaining factors regarding convenience and the interest of justice strongly 13 favor keeping the action in this District.

14 B. The Convenience of the Parties Weighs Against Transfer.

15 The convenience of the parties factor weighs in favor of keeping the action in this District.
16 Defendants’ assertions that “the District of Wyoming is a more convenient forum” because the 17 State of California and other parties are already involved in litigation there is misplaced. See 18 BLM Motion at 13-14; ND Motion at 10. The fact that Plaintiff States chose to become involved 19 in existing litigation in Wyoming as defendant-intervenors to protect their States’ interests in the 20 Waste Prevention Rule does not somehow transform Wyoming into a preferred forum that is as 21 convenient as this District or more so.

22 In fact, Plaintiff States’ participation in litigation in the District of Wyoming presents 23 significant hurdles including travel costs, the need for pro hac vice admission,⁴ securing local 24 counsel to participate in all phases of the proceedings,⁵ and additional paperwork associated with 25 out-of-state travel.⁶ See McCarthy, 2015 WL 1535594, at *4 (finding that transfer would

26 ⁴ U.S. District Court for the District of Wyoming, Civil Local Rules (Oct. 30, 2017), Local Rule 84.2(b).

27 ⁵ Id.

28 ⁶ See Cal. Gov’t Code §§ 11032-33 (requiring special approval for travel or conducting state business outside of the state).

1 “materially inconvenience plaintiffs” due to “increased travel costs and procedural hurdles, such 2 as paying for costs of admission Pro Hac Vice and the retention of local counsel”). Having the
3 Wyoming court “coordinate these cases with the two pending cases challenging the Waste
4 Prevention Rule” would not “limit travel expenses and streamline litigation” for Plaintiff States.
5 See BLM Motion at 14.

6 Meanwhile, Defendants BLM, Katharine S. MacGregor, and Ryan Zinke are based in 7 Washington, D.C. In addition, BLM’s counsel appear to be primarily based in Washington, D.C.
8 and Denver, Colorado, and are exempt from the District of Wyoming’s pro hac vice and local 9 counsel requirements.⁷ Proposed-Intervenors North Dakota and Texas have established no
10 particular connection to Wyoming (or any other state, see ND Motion at 11), and have also 11 “demonstrated their willingness to litigate” in this District (see ND Motion at 10) by moving to 12 intervene in Plaintiff States’ challenges to the Postponement Notice and in this matter. Moreover, 13 unlike the Wyoming Litigation, the State of Wyoming is not a party to this action.

14 Finally, BLM’s assertion that this District is “significantly less convenient” for them 15 because of the existing litigation in Wyoming (see BLM Motion at 14) mischaracterizes the 16 relationship between this action and the challenges to the Waste Prevention Rule in Wyoming.
17 See infra at Part II.C. Moreover, a motion to transfer should be denied where it would “merely 18 shift rather than eliminate the inconvenience.” Decker Coal, 805 F.2d at 843; see STX, Inc. v.
19 Trik Stik, Inc., 708 F. Supp. 1551, 1556 (N.D. Cal. 1988) (“If the gain to convenience to one party 20 is offset by the added inconvenience to the other, the courts have denied transfer of the action.”).
21 Thus, the convenience of the parties factor supports venue in this District.

22 C. The Litigation Challenging the Waste Prevention Rule and the 23 Unlikelihood of Consolidation Do Not Favor Transfer.

24 The primary contention made by Defendants is that the “interest of justice” favors transfer 25 “[b]ecause the District of Wyoming is intimately familiar with the Waste Prevention Rule” and 26 these cases involve “precisely the same issues” as the Wyoming Litigation. BLM Motion at 7-13;

27 ⁷ U.S. District Court for the District of Wyoming, Civil Local Rules (Oct. 30, 2017), Local Rule
28 84.2(d). Defendants are also exempt from the pro hac vice and local counsel requirements in this District. See Local Rule 11-2.

1 ND Motion at 5-8. However, this argument mischaracterizes the relationship between the present
2 action and the Wyoming Litigation. The cases before this Court challenge a separate federal 3 agency action, involve distinct claims and case law, and simply do not involve “the same issues”
4 as the litigation in Wyoming. Moreover, this Court’s handling of the present action is unlikely to 5 lead to “inconsistent results” or pose scheduling challenges with the Wyoming Litigation.

6 In the Wyoming Litigation, Petitioners challenged the Waste Prevention Rule, promulgated 7 on November 18, 2016, on the alleged basis that Defendants did not have statutory authority to 8 regulate air pollution and that the Rule was arbitrary and capricious. In particular, Petitioners
9 have alleged that the Rule (1) exceeds BLM’s statutory authority by comprehensively regulating
10 air quality, which they assert may only be accomplished through the federal Clean Air Act; (2)
11 exceeds BLM’s authority to regulate “waste” under the Mineral Leasing Act; (3) exceeds BLM’s
12 authority by regulating state and private oil and gas interests in communitized units; and (4) and 13 is arbitrary and capricious for several reasons, including its improper consideration of the “social 14 cost of methane.” See Wyoming, 2017 WL 161428, at *5-10. The administrative record and 15 merits briefing for the Wyoming Litigation has been completed, although the case has been 16 stayed at the request of BLM.

17 These issues are not before this Court. To the contrary, Plaintiff States here have 18 challenged BLM’s December 8, 2017 Suspension of the Rule on the alleged grounds that it (1) 19 was arbitrary and capricious because BLM failed to provide a reasoned explanation for 20 suspending the rule, failed to consider how the Suspension will fulfill its statutory mandates, 21 offered an explanation for its decision that runs counter to the evidence before the agency, and 22 failed to consider alternatives to a suspension; (2) violated BLM’s statutory trust responsibilities
23 or mandates to prevent waste of oil and gas, to protect the interests of the United States and 24 safeguard the public welfare, and otherwise ensure the environmentally responsible development
25 of oil and gas on public lands; (3) violated the requirements of NEPA; and (4) violated the APA
26 by failing to provide the public a meaningful opportunity to comment. See Complaint, Dkt. No.
27 1. In addition to involving different statutes, these claims rely on a separate body of case law
28

1 governing the suspension or rescission of a duly promulgated regulation, which is not at issue in
2 the Wyoming Litigation. See, e.g., F.C.C. v. Fox Television Stations, Inc., 556 U.S. 502, 515
3 (2009); Organized Village of Kake v. U.S. Dept. of Agric., 795 F.3d 956, 968 (9th Cir. 2015);
4 Public Citizen v. Steed, 733 F.2d 93, 103 (D.C. Cir. 1984); N. Carolina Growers' Ass'n, Inc. v.
5 United Farm Workers, 702 F.3d 755, 770 (4th Cir. 2012). Moreover, the administrative record
6 for the Suspension is not before the Wyoming court and will certainly include many documents
7 that are not part of the Wyoming Litigation.

8 BLM's assertion that transfer of this action to Wyoming would "avoid multiple litigations 9 based on a single transaction" is incorrect. See BLM Motion at 7-8 (citing Wireless Consumers
10 Alliance, Inc. v. T-Mobile USA, Inc., 2003 WL 22387598, *4-5 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 14, 2003)). In 11 fact, the Wireless Consumers case cited by BLM is nothing like the situation here. In that 12 litigation, the court found that the two cases at issue were "intimately related, if not identical," 13 and "nearly all of the claims [in the later-filed action] were copied verbatim from [the first-filed
14 action]." Wireless Consumers, 2003 WL 22387598, at *5. By contrast, the cases here challenge 15 two separate agency actions, and are not based on a "single transaction." See id. None of the 16 claims in Plaintiff States' challenge to the Suspension are at issue in the District of Wyoming, and 17 vice versa. The administrative record in the District of Wyoming does not include the Suspension
18 or any documents post-dating the issuance of the Waste Prevention Rule in November 2016.

19 For the same reasons, there is no real threat of "inconsistent judgments" if this Court
20 reviews Plaintiff States' challenge to the Suspension, while the District of Wyoming continues to 21 address Petitioners' challenges to the Waste Prevention Rule. See BLM Motion at 7-8, 12; ND
22 Motion at 7. Petitioners' arguments challenging the validity of the Waste Prevention Rule are not 23 before this Court and would not be addressed in any decision involving the Suspension. Nor are 24 there schedules that need to be coordinated. BLM Motion at 12; ND Motion at 7. The Wyoming 25 Litigation has been stayed at BLM's request, and the requirement that a party "seek lifting of the 26 stay should circumstances change warranting such relief" (Dkt. No. 50-1, Ex. B at 5) is a simple 27 procedure that does not warrant transfer.
28

1 Both BLM and Proposed Intervenors further cite the Wyoming court's statement that these 2 cases are "inextricably intertwined" with the Wyoming Litigation. BLM Motion at 8, 12; ND
3 Motion at 7. However, that court was not evaluating a motion to transfer, and this out-of-context
4 statement does not even reference the standard for such a motion and has no bearing here.
5 Similarly, Plaintiff States' filing of an administrative motion to consider whether these cases
6 should be related to their challenges to the Postponement Notice, pursuant to Local Rule 3-12(b),
7 says nothing about the appropriateness of transfer to the District of Wyoming. See BLM Motion 8 at 8 n.2.

9 While it is true that the District of Wyoming has some familiarity with the Waste
10 Prevention Rule, this does not provide the substantial savings in judicial economy that 11 Defendants suggest, for several reasons. See BLM Motion at 8-12; ND Motion at 6-7. First, the 12 legal issues surrounding BLM's issuance of the Suspension raised by Plaintiff States, and the 13 administrative record that will provide the basis for deciding Plaintiff States' claims, are not 14 before the Wyoming court. Although the Wyoming court is aware of the Suspension, its 15 evaluation and resolution of Petitioners' discrete claims in the Wyoming Litigation involved an 16 administrative record that does not go past November 2016 or involve any documents that 17 provided the basis for BLM's Suspension of the Rule. Moreover, as demonstrated in Plaintiff 18 States' Motion for a Preliminary Injunction (Dkt. No. 3), this Court does not need to evaluate 19 Petitioners' challenges to the Waste Prevention Rule, or the full record from the promulgation of 20 the Rule, in order to determine whether BLM violated the law in issuing the Suspension.

21 In sum, the significant differences between the Wyoming Litigation and this action render 22 this factor neutral. Even assuming a minor benefit to judicial economy, that does not outweigh
23 the other convenience or justice factors, let alone the substantial deference afforded to Plaintiff
24 States' choice of forum.

25 D. The Court Congestion Factor Weighs Against Transfer.

26 Considerations of court congestion also favor keeping the action in this District. "Courts
27 may use the average time between filing and disposition or trial as a measure for court
28

1 congestion.” McCarthy, 2015 WL 1535594, at *5; see Am. Civil Liberties Union of N. Calif. v.
2 Burwell, 2017 WL 1540606, *6 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 28, 2017). According to the latest data, the 3 average time between filing and disposition in this District is 7.2 months, compared to 10.2
4 months in the District of Wyoming. See United States District Courts—National Judicial 5 Caseload Profile (Sept. 30, 2017), available at:
6 http://www.uscourts.gov/sites/default/files/data_tables/fcms_na_distprofile0930.2017.pdf. This 7 three-month difference is significant given the January 2018 compliance dates at issue, and 8 weighs against transfer of this action. See Lubchenco, 2009 WL 4545169, at *4 (finding “a 9 modest difference in the congestion of the courts’ calendars that weighs slightly against 10 transfer”).

11 E. The Remaining Factors Are Neutral.

12 Plaintiff States agree that the remaining factors regarding convenience and the interest of 13 justice are neutral. See BLM Motion at 15-16. With regard to the convenience of the witnesses
14 factor, there are no witnesses to consider because this action does not involve disputed material
15 facts and should be decided on motions for summary judgment. See Lubchenco, 2009 WL
16 4545169, at *3. Similarly, the ease of access to evidence factor is neutral in this APA action. See 17 id. (“documentary evidence is easily transported to any venue, in this era of electronic 18 communication”). Finally, the familiarity of each forum with applicable law factor is neutral, as 19 the relevant courts in both California and Wyoming are familiar with the APA, NEPA, and 20 federal land management statutes at issue. See id. (“Both California and Alaska courts are 21 equally familiar with the environmental laws at issue.”).

22 BLM appears to characterize the local interest in the controversy factor as one favoring 23 transfer, but their actual description of this factor appears to be neutral. See BLM Motion at 14-
24 15 (stating that “Wyoming has ties to and an interest in these cases that is at least equal to that of 25 California,” and “California has no more of an interest in [the issue of climate change] than 26 Wyoming”). Both states have a significant amount of federal fossil fuel development impacted 27 by the Rule, and California has more federal mineral estate lands. See supra at Part I. Moreover,
28

1 given that the Suspension “applies to the development of federal oil and Indian minerals
2 nationwide,” BLM Motion at 1, this action does not constitute a localized controversy that favors
3 any particular venue under this factor. See Decker Coal, 805 F.2d at 843 (the localized interest 4 factor requires the court to consider the current and transferee forums’ interests “in having 5 localized controversies decide at home”).

6 III. THE FIRST-TO-FILE RULE IS IRRELEVANT TO THIS ACTION.

7 Proposed-Intervenors also claim that transfer to the District of Wyoming is warranted under 8 the “first-to-file” rule because these cases involve “many of the same parties,” “substantially 9 similar issues,” and the Wyoming Litigation has been pending for over a year. ND Motion at 9.
10 However, the first-to-file rule has no relevance here. As described by this court, “when two 11 identical actions are filed in courts of concurrent jurisdiction, the court which first acquired 12 jurisdiction should try the lawsuit and no purpose would be served by proceeding with a section 13 action.” IT Convergence v. Moonracer, Inc., 2013 WL 6512732, *2 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 12, 2013)
14 (quoting Pacesetter Sys., Inc. v. Medtronic, Inc., 678 F.2d 93, 95 (9th Cir. 1982)). “Courts 15 analyze three factors in determining whether to apply the first-to-file rule: (1) chronology of the 16 actions; (2) similarity of the parties; and (3) similarity of the issues.” Id. (citation omitted).

17 Here, Plaintiff States challenge an entirely separate final agency action than was at issue in 18 the Wyoming Litigation, namely, the Suspension of the Waste Prevention Rule that BLM
19 finalized on December 8, 2017. Because the APA only allows for judicial review of “final 20 agency action,” 5 U.S.C. § 704, this action could not have been filed until December 8, 2017, at 21 the earliest. At the time the Waste Prevention Rule was finalized and challenged in November 22 2016, the Suspension (and legal challenges to it) were not even being contemplated. Moreover,
23 as discussed above in Part II.C., this action involves substantially different issues than the 24 Wyoming Litigation. See IT Convergence, 2013 WL 6512732 at *2 (“A case is ‘substantially 25 similar’ if it ‘rest[s] on identical factual allegations and assert[s] identical or analogous causes of 26 action’”) (citation omitted). Consequently, it makes no sense to apply the first-to-file rule here.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, Defendants have failed to demonstrate that the convenience and interest of justice factors warrant disturbing Plaintiff States’ choice of its home forum. Consequently, Defendants’ motions to transfer should be denied.
